Halloween is a special day celebrated on October 31.

Some people think it is a very old festival celebrating the harvest.

People built fires, and they wore masks and costumes to copy the bad spirits.

These traditions were brought to North America in the 19th century and are still enjoyed today.

It began in the Heian period nobles enjoyed the full moon on the 15th night every month of the old calendar.

In the Edo period, people started to celebrate both the harvest of the year and the full moon on August 15.

Jugo-ya is celebrated in September in many parts of Japan.
