When Mr. Yamamoto was in elementary school, he visited Africa with his father.

There he saw many people who were suffering from hunger and illness.

He was shocked and became interested in international cooperation.

He visited a lot of developing countries as a doctor.

But he could save only a few hundred patients a year.

In 2004, he started a group called "Earth the Spaceship" to improve the situation.

Its goal is to Increase the number of local people who are willing to work in those countries.
